

The Ghent Christian Church of Ghent, Kentucky was a Disciples of Christ denomination that was organized in 1836 and continued until around 1983, when the church had only a few members and the church structure was sold to a group of Mennonites in hopes that they would take care of the building. Some items such as the communion set were given to the Lexington Theological Seminary and distributed to other churches. The church building later became the property of the City of Ghent which had offices in the rear annex. The future of the structure is uncertain.

In June of 2015 a box of church records were in the possession of Alice Inda Craig Davis and her son, William Albert Davis of Ghent. Mrs. Davis was an officer of the church. At the time the box contained the following items:

CHURCH REGISTER
ARRANGED BY ELDER R. MOFFETT.

PUBLISHED BY
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS; CINCINNATI, OHIO.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.

- 1.—The Alphabetical Register serves as an index. Opposite the name write the number of the name in Register A.
- 2.—Register A gives the names in the order received to fellowship. They should be numbered in the order received. In the columns marked "commencement," "baptism," "reclaimed," they may be numbered, also, showing the number commended, the number baptized, etc. Or the clerk may simply dot the columns to which they belong. Under head of "remarks," write name of church from which letter is brought, or denomination from which the person comes.
- 3.—Register B gives the names of those leaving the church. Write the names, and number them in the order of their leaving; and set opposite in column marked "A," the number of same name found in Register A. Turn then to Register A, and write opposite the same name, in column marked "B," the number of name in Register B. Under head of "remarks," write the name of church to which commended.
- 4.—Register C gives the names of females changing name by marriage. In such case, write the name in alphabetical list, and set opposite the number of original name in Register A. Opposite original name in Register A, write, in column marked "C," the number of name in Register C. Also, in Register C, give reference to original name in Register A. If the husband is a member, refer to the number of his name in Register A.
- 5.—When any person returns after dismissal, treat him as a new member. Set down his name in Register A, giving him a new number. Write this new number opposite his name in the Alphabetical Register. If he is dismissed again write his name anew in Register B, with reference to his last number in Register A.
- 6.—Any matters of record, concerning any member, can be referred to by giving page of record, in column marked "record;" elections, ordinations, exclusions, etc., will be matters of record.
- 7.—The Financial Statement is simply the annual report of treasurer. Receipts may be classified by the month, and disbursements classified under heads: "regular preaching," "transient preaching," "charities," "missions," "sexton," "incidentals," "S. School," "other purposes."

The Ghent Christian Church of Ghent, Kentucky was a Disciples of Christ denomination that was organized in 1836 and continued until around 1983, when the church had only a few members and the church structure was sold to a group of Mennonites in hopes that they would take care of the building. Some items such as the communion set were given to the Lexington Theological Seminary and distributed to other churches. The church building later became the property of the City of Ghent which had offices in the rear annex. The future of the structure is uncertain.

In June of 2015 a box of church records were in the possession of Alice Inda Craig Davis and her son, William Albert Davis of Ghent. Mrs. Davis was an officer of the church. At the time the box contained the following items:

Davis of Ghent (wmadavis@gmail.com) researchers can check with the Disciples of Christ Historical Society in Nashville, The Kentucky Historical Society, The Kentucky Department of Libraries and Archives, or the Carroll County Public Library. In June of 2015 Davis was scanning some records to deposit at Archive.org.
